The Imperial Bank of Persia, established in 1889, was the first bank to issue banknotes and attempt to establish a modern banking system in Iran. Its banknotes are, in fact, some of the most beautiful and largest notes ever issued for any nation; yet, the story of the Imperial Bank and its notes is complex and complicated because there are very few remaining specimens, especially of the earliest notes and those of higher denominations. This lavishly illustrated and stochastically printed volume showcases the best and rarest of these banknotes while untangling the complex web of branch banks in Iran.

“This is not only an asset for numismatics, but particularly so for the economic history of Persia... Michael Bonine has worked with an interesting subject matter and he tells us fascinating stories.” (Coins Weekly) About the Author Dr. Michael E. Bonine was a specialist on urbanization of the Middle East and was head of the University of Arizona's School of Middle Eastern North African Studies.
